Android Developer (m/f/d)

We are looking for a motivated Android Developer to join our multinational and multicultural IT organisation. Are you someone who is passionate about creating world class apps and maybe even have a secret obsession for feeding people? Then keep on reading!

What you tell your friends when they ask what you do...

"Our team is responsible for our mobile applications which allow people to order their favorite food! I work closely with my fellow code enthusiasts, our product owner, QA, UI/UX designers and our goal is to deliver sustainable work we can be proud of"

Your mission

- Design, build, create & maintain code for a multi country operating platform.
- Teach, share, influence & learn together with a company, a scrum team, a second family

Is this you?

- You are proactive in sharing and seeking out information
- Giving and receiving feedback is second nature to you
- You have an eye for detail but also understand when a more pragmatic approach is needed
- Writing tests for your code is part of your definition of done
- You grasp the importance of UX and the work you deliver is sustainable
- You are knowledgeable on Kotlin, Java, Room Database and Coroutines
- You are familiar with architectural patterns like MVP, MVVM & MVI and can rehearse them while solving a rubix cube. Challenge accepted?

What we offer

- International working atmosphere and cross-cultural teams
- Team events and global gatherings, such as our annual ski trip and summer event at the beach!
- Training budget, that allows you to attend conferences and workshops as we encourage you to develop not only apps but also yourself.
- Safety of a large company: pension scheme and stability
- For applicants from abroad: relocation package and inhouse German classes
